LADIES' VISITING CARDS AT THE INDEX-TRIBUNE OFFICE.

KIDNAPED.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

There was to be a double wedding between Donald Syphax and May Southworth, parties of the first part, and Pembroke Hughes and Delia Hickox, parties of the second part. The parties of the first part had sent out their cards and made all preparations, when they were astonished to learn that the parties of the second part had determined to postpone their share in the ceremony.

What was the occasion of this sudden change of program?

The truth was (and the parties of the first part learned it) that the parties of the second part, having heard that both couples were to be given a hot time on the wedding night by their friends, concluded they would not only escape the intended attentions by delay, but have an opportunity to join in what was in store for the Syphax-Southworth pair. The latter couple had no choice but to be married on time or recall the invitations. They decided to come to the scratch, but to put in practice a plan for outwitting the others.

Miss Southworth's wedding took place in her father's home, situated at the end of a long block of stone front houses on one of the principal dwelling streets of the city. The ceremony was to take place at 10 o'clock, and the bride and groom gave out that they would take an 11 o'clock train for parts which they declined to mention to any one whatever. An automobile was to be in waiting to take them to the station with a chauffeur they could trust implicitly, for he was a brother of the groom.

An enthusiastic number of friends attended the wedding, including Mr. Hughes and Miss Hickox. The ceremony had been performed, the bride's health had been drunk in the supper room, and the couple went upstairs to get on wraps preparatory to their departure. A dozen automobiles stood ready without, armed with tin horns.

The lower hallway was crowded with guests, holding old slippers and rice, waiting for the couple to come down and pass out. Considerable time elapsed, and some one became suspicious. A committee went upstairs and after a prolonged search came back with the information that the bridal pair were not to be found.

The merry crowd were not to be cheated entirely of the sport they had anticipated. Bob Southworth, a brother of the bride, suggested that a couple personate the one that had escaped and asked the Hughes-Hickok couple if they would make the ride to the station in the automobile intended for the bride and groom. They willingly accepted the part and, accompanied by Bob Southworth, who had made the suggestion, and his sister Lucia, came down the staircase, received the shower of slippers and rice, went out and got into the automobile. Then the mock bridal party rolled away, followed by the other autos, the attendants tooting the horns and firing roman candles.

Now, it appeared from the first that the bridal auto was stronger and faster than any of the others and possessed a chauffeur who was bent on leaving them behind. He threaded his way skillfully through the streets, not to a railroad station, but to the outskirts of the city, and from the outskirts on a country road. The mock bridal couple enjoyed the ride immensely, but soon noticed that the fun was over, for not one of the following autos was in sight. Then they began to think of returning, but the proposition was received with a burst of laughter.

"You're in the hands of the enemy," said Bob Southworth. "Lucia and I have you in charge, our brother Ned is chauffeur, and we're going to make this a double wedding after all."

"What do you mean?" cried Delia Hickox, aghast.

"Why, we're making for the Buckingham House. There's no way of getting away from it after 11 p. m. and no train to get back to town on if you could leave the hotel. We're going to leave you there together, and you can stay or not, as you like. We'll give you a parson to hitch you—he's provided for and waiting—and if you don't use him there'll be the biggest scandal our set has known in years."

"And you were in league with Donald and May?"

"They concocted the scheme. They escaped through the scuttle in the roof and came down and out through another house in the block."

They were going like a hurricane and in an hour pulled up at their destination. Meanwhile the pair had consulted, invented plans of escape only to throw them aside and at last came to the conclusion that since they must be laughed at it would be better to be laughed at without a scandal. When they reached the goal they found a parson waiting and all ready for a wedding. Those in the auto were preparing to return without them when they consented and were married, inviting their abductors to be their wedding guests.

After further deliberation they decided not to face the crowd of merrymakers they had left and spent the bridal night at the Buckingham.

When the party in the automobile returned to the house, where dancing and feasting were in progress, and announced the second half of the double wedding the house was made to ring. Some one proposed to take automobiles and go to the Buckingham, but the kidnapers would not consent.

ADELAIDE RUTH HILL.

His Inventive Genius.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Johnny Bounce and I were schoolmates and fast friends. Johnny was younger than I, but stronger. Every boy who could lick me availed himself of the opportunity just for the fun of it. Johnny could lick most of them and, noticing that I needed a friend, began to lick every boy that licked me. This had a wholesome effect, and I was soon let alone. Indeed, I am not sure that I did not impose on some of them, knowing that a dread of John's big fist would deter them from giving me a deserved punishment.

When we left school to go out into the world (we were pretty big boys then) I said to John Bounce: "Johnny, I want you to understand that I owe you a whole lot. If I ever get a chance to make a stand off for what you've done for me, I'll do it."

"Oh, you don't owe me anything, Tom," he said. "Besides, I guess we'll both get along pretty well."

I didn't see John after our parting for years. Then one day a man came into my office of very forlorn appearance. I put my fingers in my pocket to get out 10 cents when I noticed the fellow looking at me with a quizzical expression.

"You don't know me, Tom?"

"No, I don't."

"I'm Johnny Bounce."

My heart sank, for I knew that the world had been too much for John. However, I gave his hand a warm grasp, asked him to sit down and tell me what he had been doing. He said he hadn't had much success thus far, but he had "irons in the fire," some of which he thought would pan out very big. I had heard of these "irons" before in connection with men who had lost their grip on the world and knew that instead of irons they were gases. But I saw that John was sincere, so I did not discourage him.

"You can't run a thing like that, John," I said, referring to one of his schemes, "without being 'grub staked.' I haven't any capital to put in, but I wish you would let me lend you what you need from time to time. I've got $10 here in my— No? Don't need it? Well, whenever you do come right in here and get it."

I knew perfectly well that he needed money, but could not bring himself to take it from me, whose equal he had been in everything except an ability to punch boys' heads, and in this he had been my superior. I was obliged to let him go without affording him relief, but I took his address, resolving to find some indirect way of giving him money. But I was very busy at the time and put the matter off. Besides, I am not an inventive genius and failed to think of any method of lending John Bounce money without appearing to give it.

One morning a woman came into my office and said she had heard John Bounce, who boarded with her, speak of me. She said that Bounce owed her $87.45 for board, and she would like me to tell her if he had any property on which she could levy. I told her that Mr. Bounce was a perfectly honorable man, but was trying to carry through certain schemes without sufficient capital. She left with a check for the amount of her bill. A week later I received a note from John regretting that the woman had thought it necessary to adopt such strenuous measures and assuring me that one of his irons was at white heat and he would soon call and return the amount. I admired his plan of enabling me to help him indirectly.

John never came to see me. His pride, his sensitiveness, whatever it was, wouldn't let him. One day a long while after the board bill episode I received a note from an undertaker telling me that a man named John Bounce had died in a boarding house. A letter from me had been found in his room, and since there was no money to bury him it was deemed advisable to notify me. The amount required was about $100.

I was sorry now since poor John was gone that I had not been able to do more for him. I inclosed a check for the amount and authorized a call for more. I did the latter as an excuse to my conscience for not attending to the matter personally. I couldn't bring myself to such a melancholy duty.

A few months later I received a note from one who wrote that he had been an intimate friend of the late Mr. John Bounce, the inventor. It was proposed by several of Mr. Bounce's friends to place a headstone at his grave. There were four men ready to contribute $50 each. The cost of the stone would be $250. Knowing that I had been a schoolmate of Mr. Bounce, he had ventured to write to know if I would make one of five. I at once sent my check for $50.

A year passed. One morning I received a note from a lawyer stating that John Bounce had died a few days before (my hair stood on end with astonishment), that Mr. Bounce had left me his sole heir (I wondered), that Mr. Bounce had patented a mechanical toy, and that a toy manufacturing company stood ready to give $25,000 for the sole right to manufacture (I grasped my desk for support).

This wonder turned out to be a reality. I accepted the offer, and when the check was paid me my eyes filled with tears. My poor, dear Johnny Bounce had succeeded after all, but too late. My thoughts were only on that genius for inventing methods by which I could give him money without wounding the feelings of either himself or me.

NOEL WESLEY BATES

Over the Wire.

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]

Job Strong kept a grocery in the town of Medina, and he was an old bachelor. It had been said of him a hundred times over that he was the homeliest man in the state.

Job Strong had a brother living in Brunswick, and, as each had a telephone, messages often passed between them. The grocer had a good voice. It was deep and rich and clear, and he was accounted one of the best singers in his church choir. One day when he went to hello for Brunswick he found himself answered by a new voice. It was that of a female, and it stirred his heart at once. It was pitched to a gentle cadence. It reminded him of his own New Orleans molasses gently gurgling from the spigot into a customer's jug. It rolled along the wire like a new tire on a bike, and he held on to it as long as possible. Curiously enough, that deep, rich voice of his awoke an answering echo in the heart of the operator at Brunswick. She thought of knights and cavaliers and squires and dames, and it was with a sigh that she switched him over to the brother.

It may be giving away the plot too soon, but there is a curious coincidence here to be explained. The Brunswick operator was an old maid named Miss Judkins. She had reached the age of forty and for the last twenty years had been a match for Job Strong in homeliness. "As homely as Miss Judkins" was a saying for thirty miles around. They said of her that she had once scared a cow to death by entering the barn and that when farmers drove to town they double hitched their horses to the posts on her account. And, like Job Strong, she didn't know that anything was amiss.

After the first call over the wire Job Strong had a longing to hear that voice again. Not many hours had passed before he found an excuse. This time he did not inquire for his brother, but asked about the price of real estate and other things in Brunswick and also introduced himself. The operator could do no less than give her own name in reply, and thus began the courtship, for such it truly was. At least three times a day the grocer had something to say over the wire and found a ready and sympathetic listener. He had a picture in his mind's eye of the lady with the voice that thrilled, and whether he was weighing out sugar or drawing molasses it was ever before him. She was tall and stately and gentle and smiling and would make a wife to be proud of. Miss Judkins also hugged a mental photograph to her heart. It was of a knight on a black charger.

When three months had gone by the grocer determined to visit Brunswick and know the worst or best. He found himself absentminded by day and sleepless by night, and this wouldn't do at all. The first he knew his rivals would be selling wagon grease 2 cents a box cheaper than he was and drawing away his trade. He notified Miss Judkins of the day, and she put on her Sunday dress and extra false hair for the occasion and also got a substitute for the day. Two hearts were beating tumultuously as Job knocked at the door. Then two people surveyed each other for a moment and sat down, and there came a painful silence. It was broken at last by Miss Judkins' brother, who was present. After letting out a guffaw to be heard forty rods he exclaimed:

"Well, may I be durned!"

This aroused the sister to action, and with flaming cheeks she turned on Job Strong and severely said:

"Sir, how dare you come here and play such a trick on me!"

"Trick! Trick! What do you mean?"

"You are passing yourself off as Mr. Strong of Medina, but you can't be he!"

"And I expected to see Miss Judkins instead of you."

"But I am Miss Judkins."

"And I am Mr. Strong."

"I'll be durned again!" shouted the brother after another guffaw.

"Sir, this is unbearable!" said Miss Judkins as she rose up.

"Miss, it is a joke that I don't understand at all," replied Mr. Strong as he also rose up.

"I expected to see a rather handsome man."

"And I a rather handsome woman."

"But instead of that you are the homeliest man I ever laid eyes on."

"Ditto."

"You insult me, sir!"

"And you insult me!"

"Good lands, but if I'd have known you were the man you are I wouldn't have wasted a minute on you!"

"Ditto again!"

"Look a-here," said the brother when he could stop laughing, "you two are foolish to quarrel. Destiny has brought this about. You are well matched for homeliness. You both take the cake over anything I ever saw. If you don't get together you will never have another chance on the face of this earth. Julia, you know that I've told you a million times that you'd scare crows into fits. Mr. Strong, you'll excuse me, but I've seen more beauty in old stumps than you can boast of in your face. I'm going outdoors to laugh. Get together."

It is a pleasure to record that they followed the well meant advice, although there were some awkward intervals, and that they were married six months later and have lived as peacefully since as if they had each taken a prize at a beauty show; also that New Orleans molasses at a fixed price per the year round continues to be a drawing card at Strong's cash grocery.

Graft Prosecution a Public Nuisance and Rank Failure

Ten men who have made a keen analysis of the Calhoun case and have as jurymen weighed every particle of evidence introduced were convinced that the defendant in that famous case was not guilty as charged and the disagreement resulting in the conflict of opinion with the minority is a blow to the spectacular graft prosecution of San Francisco. If there was any doubt in the minds of men as to the quality of evidence piled up by Mr. Heney, it has been cleared away and public opinion in the metropolis is convinced that all was regarded fair in that war made by Rudolph Spreckels against his business rivals. There was nothing dignified in Mr. Heney's methods and the attitude and expression of Judge Lawler wherein he sought consideration for Heney's peculiar temperament has been strongly criticized. Mr. Heney plunged into the fight when convalescent but that did not entitle him to be pampered by court and counsel, yet the Judge asked indulgence for him. It was heroic perhaps for Mr. Heney to come out of the hospital and renew his fight but by so doing he placed himself on a par with other appearing counsel and the law recognizes no difference between the suffering convalescent and his husky rival when their voices ring out in prosecution or defense. Judge Lawler, however, was considerate as his expressions during the trial showed. His charge to the jury, however, was impartial and the verdict of the ten men of that jury secured after hundreds of citizens had been impaneled shows plainly that Mr. Heney had little solid foundation on which to base his big promises and that laurels will never be placed on his brow if he waits for a conviction on evidence such as he got together to nail Patrick Calhoun.

Helping the Helpless.

Superintendent Dawson of the Sonoma Home at Eldridge has had his salary increased from $3,000 to $3,600 per year. There should be a good salary for such work as this in order that we may get men with the peculiar temperament and proper training to devote their lives to the proper conducting of these much criticized institutions. A good man can make a handsome income from his private practice and if he is not looking for a snap would hesitate to accept a political job unless a good salary made it worth his while. Doctors who are looking for snaps are not the kind which this big public work demands. Here in these institutions there is all the field that reformers need for years to come. Let them browse around our public hospitals and help the helpless dependents. Here are bodies to be cared for and minds to be healed. The souls of free agents, who in most instances the reformers find difficult to rope, will work out their own salvation, but the quality of mercy might be preached in our institutions and the pent up days of our unfortunates made more liveable. Reformers who work for this may let their hair grow to dooms day if their efforts flourish in proportion. We have had our days of scandal at the Home but at the present time, under Dr. Dawson's vigilant eye, there has been an excellent administration there.

Incubators Will Lay

Since science with chicks is doing such wonder,
We are not surprised at the fellow there yonder,
Who a la Burbank has introduced now a hen,
Which refuses to set for women or men.
She can't be persuaded to cluck round the yard,
Or waste any time on eggs that are hard.
She's an up-to-date wise one, but we all wait that day,
When scientists will get the incubator to lay.
Though we may not get chickens or ducks just as now,
We may get good decoys that way I vow.

The Corner Sign.

Sonoma is entitled to a more euphonous lot of names for its streets, and the prosaic numerical cardinal point designations which now appear on the sign boards should give way to better ones. The older maps of the city bear prettier names than more recent ones and the historical association and suggestions which accompany many of the older streets should be revived and popularized. New towns into which no romantic history is interwoven may be satisfied with Second Streets East and Third Streets West but let us come into our own and claim Fremont, Vallejo, Altimira and Sloat streets, or Ide, Fowler, or Carillo avenues. The Woman's Club should take up this matter and, as has been done in other towns, might donate handsome sign boards with the musical old names for street corners.

The Index-Tribune has long advocated summer band concerts, and a local organization of musicians with the object of making the summer evenings attractive in the town of Sonoma would be a splendid idea. We have talent and every one should encourage the organization of it for this purpose. Large crowds would circulate around our plaza on a promenade concert night and it would boom the town and enliven the streets.

Appreciation of Mrs. R. P. Hill's Generosity.

To Mrs. R. Hill of Eldridge the pupils of the Presentation Convent Christian Doctrine Class of Sonoma, return sincere thanks for the beautiful gold medal she donated to them, especially those who merited it: Miss Gilia Dal Poggetto, Masters John Caneyari, John Equi, Olivo Maffei and Misses Lycett, Nessi and Demartini. Miss M. Lycett was the lucky winner.

Some of the gentlemen friends of the club were present and Trustee Wagnon made a speech voicing for the city fathers their appreciation of the work the ladies have done for the plaza and town, which it is needless to say was well received and much applauded. FIENDISH WORK OF A DASTARD

Attempt to Burn Fetters' New Hotel at Agua Caliente

A dastardly attempt at arson was made last Saturday night between 8 and 9 o'clock by an unhung villian, who applied the incendiary's torch to Fetter's magnificent new hotel at Agua Caliente. The fire was started in the ladies reception room, which had been carefully cleaned preparatory to staining the floor. The incendiary effected an entrance to the room through an unfastened window. He carried with him a bag of shavings, which had been used by the carpenters as a knee pad, and cutting up a carpenters "horse" for kindling, applied a match to the combustibles and made good his escape.

A number of Italian laborers employed at the new baths discovered the blaze and rushing into the building extinguished the flames before serious damage had been done. A clew to the perpetrator of this dastardly attempt to destroy one of the principal resorts of Sonoma Valley has been obtained and will be followed up. It may lead to the capture and punishment of the cowardly perpetrator.

Cowardly Assailant Goes to Jail for Ninety Days

On Wednesday morning of last week Archibald McIvor, recently employed at Agua Caliente Springs made a cowardly and unprovoked attack upon Elmer C. Owens, a clerk in Mrs. Rosemond's candy store at El Verano. The assailant used a large stone upon his victim and after first blinding him with a handful of dust, which he threw into his eyes, attempted to beat his brains out with the stone, which was as large as a basalt paving block.

The injured man swore out a warrant in Judge Small's court Monday, charging his assailant with assault with a deadly weapon. On Wednesday McIvor, who had been arrested and locked up in jail by Deputy Sheriff Ryan, the previous day, appeared before his honor, and pleading guilty to simple assault was sentenced to serve ninety days in the county jail. The prisoner was taken to Santa Rosa the same evening by officer Ryan and turned over to Sheriff Smith.

RESCUED FROM DROWNING

Seized With Cramps While Swimming--Young Man Almost Loses Life

Victor Linberg, twenty-two years old and a visitor from San Francisco, had a narrow escape from death by drowning while in swimming at Boyes Springs on Saturday. He was taking a plunge in the big tank and although an experienced swimmer he was suddenly seized with a cramp and before the big crowd and other swimmers in the tank realized his predicament the young man had gone down for the last time. Only the cool-headed courage of Robt. McGill, who went to the fast sinking man's assistance prevented a sad tragedy. Linberg was pulled out by the heels and after local restoratives had been applied he was hurried to Leix's sanitarium, where he was resuscitated and by Monday afternoon was able to leave for his city home.

BIG PICNIC AT AGUA CALIENTE

San Rafael Parishoners Hold Outing at the Springs Last Saturday

A big excursion train loaded with seven hundred and fifty parishoners of San Rafael came up to Agua Caliente Springs last Saturday where they enjoyed a fine outing. Accompanied by Rev. Father Philips, the old and popular pastor of St. Raphael's Church and his assistant, Father Walsh, the old and young members of the excursion party were met at the station with a warm welcome from Mr. and Mrs. Richards who accorded them every opportunity to make merry at the beautiful resort. Every attraction was taken advantage of and a program of their own, which included various games and contests, made the day a most enjoyable one.

On Tuesday one of the parochial schools of Oakland came up to Agua Caliente and like the San Rafael excursionists voted the outing a big success.

Death Claims School Girl

Miss Lucy Huddart, sixteen years of age and a Freshman at the Sonoma High School, died on Tuesday after a three weeks illness at her home near Caliente. The young girl succumbed to paralysis of the heart. She was a most energetic young person and was striving hard for an education. She made the trip from her home in the hills to school every day, often walking the entire distance. Her ambition and vigorous athletic tendencies proved too much for her and at the end of the school term she broke down completely.

Her sister, Miss Emily Huddart, who recently went to the state of Washington to complete her education, came down on Friday to attend the funeral. Much sympathy went out to the bereaved ones from the school friends and neighbors of the deceased girl.

RUN DOWN BY RAILWAY TRAIN

Miraculous Escape of Man and Horse from Instant Death--Buggy Demolished

A thrilling railway accident took place at the Lawrence Villa crossing of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad last Wednesday morning.

Etionne Ondella, a summer visitor to our valley from San Francisco, attempted to cross the railroad track in a one-horse light buggy ahead of the morning passenger train from San Francisco due here at 9:44. He made a miscalculation, and when in the center of the track the light vehicle was struck by the cow-catcher of the engine and hurled to one side of the rails. Ondella was sent whirling through the air by the force of the impact and struck the ground sixty-five feet distant from the track. The horse was likewise thrown clear of the track. The buggy, however, was badly wrecked.

Witnesses of the accident hastened to the assistance of the prostrate man, who was found limp and unconscious. Ondella was picked up and rushed to Eastland's drug store, where restoratives were applied by Dr. Eastland. The injured man was then removed to the Leix sanitarium, where Dr. Leix, after a thorough examination discovered that no bones were broken, though the patient was in a dangerous condition for a long time owing to the shock.

At latest accounts the patient, who is suffering from internal injuries, appears to be holding his own and his condition is favorable to recovery.

The strangest part of the mix-up between locomotive, man, horse and buggy is that the equine came out of the collision almost without a scratch.

The cause of the accident is being investigated by the railway officials on the one side and friends of the injured man on the other.

Accidents

A twelve-year-old boy who was spending his vacation at Agua Caliente, while attempting to board a train at that place last Tuesday, fell and broke a leg. The limb was set by Dr. Thomson, after which the lad was taken to his home in Oakland.

Mr. Olsen, residing with his family on the Leonhardt place in the eastern suburbs of town, fell off a fruit ladder, one day this week, and caved in several ribs. His collar bone was broken and he also received internal injuries and his condition is considered serious by his physician.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Miss Bessie Yates of San Francisco and Mrs. Walter L. Murphy of Alameda were guests at the Granice home several days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Reichardt of San Francisco, who are sojourning at Boyes' Springs, entertained Miss Ernestine Fisher and Miss Lillian Bulotti at dinner Wednesday.

Theodor Richards of Agua Caliente Springs went to San Francisco Thursday on business connected with the big resort. Mr. Richards contemplates building a large sanitarium and making this health resort the Greater Agua Caliente.

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores and regulates the womanly functions, abolishes pain and builds up and puts the finishing touch of health on every weak woman who gives it a fair trial.

A CAREFUL MAN.

When It Came to Money He Had to Put on the Brakes.

The passengers in an accommodation train which was winding its way through New Hampshire were interested and amused by an elderly couple who sat in the middle of the car.

They talked as if there were no one else in the car. Therefore, having heard most of their private plans, no one was surprised to have the old man take the assembled company fully into his confidence. At one station he rose and addressed the passengers in general.

"Can anybody change a five dollar bill for two tens and a one or five ones?" he inquired.

"I can," said a brisk woman, and the transfer was quickly made.

"Now, could anybody change this one dollar bill for four quarters or tens and fives?" asked the old man.

"I can give you two fifties," said a man from the rear seat, "unless somebody else can do better."

It appeared that nobody could or at least nobody offered, so as the train started the old man lurched down the car to the possessor of the two fifty cent pieces.

"Thank you," he said as he took the money. "I'm obliged, though I'd have liked the quarters best. You see, Marthy has set her mind to stop off at Nashua whilst I go on up to my brother's with the eggs and truck. And, though she don't plan nor mean to be a spendthrifty woman, when she's let loose amongst a lot of stores she'll run through 50 cents in an hour easy, and I kind of have to put a curb on her."—Youth's Companion.

THE TURTLE'S HEAD.

Chopped Off, It Retains Life For a Number of Hours.

On the counter, in a porcelain dish, stood the severed head of a large turtle.

"That is rather grewsome," said a man who was buying oysters.

The oyster opener glanced at the head carelessly.

"It is a bet," said he. "I bet Gus Schmidt that the head would keep alive twenty-four hours. It's nearly twenty-five now since I chopped it off. Gus is late. But I win anyhow," he added.

"Where's my money? Pay me my money!" a deep voice shouted at this moment, and a short man swaggered in.

"You've lost, Gus," said the oyster opener. "There is still life in her."

"There is—nit," said Gus Schmidt. "Nix on the life."

And he extended a stumpy finger fearlessly toward the turtle's mouth.

"Gee!"

Startled, amazed, Gus Schmidt leaped back. For in the turtle's open eyes a fierce light had flashed, the ugly mouth had opened and shut with a sharp snap, and the head in some strange way had advanced an inch or two toward the tempting finger, much as a piece of steel advances toward a magnet.

"This may surprise you, Gus," said the oyster opener, wiping his wet hands in order to pocket his winnings. "But it don't surprise me none. I've seen turtle heads keep life in 'em longer'n this here."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Greeley Dodged Lincoln.

President Lincoln, having been often and severely arraigned in the New York Tribune for what Mr. Greeley considered his slowness in prosecuting the war, had said: "If he (Greeley) objects to my policy, I shall be glad to have him state to me his views frankly and fully. I shall adopt his if I can. If I cannot, I will at least tell him why. He and I should stand together."

"If I were to go," said Greeley when the words were repeated to him, "he would simply twist me around his fingers, as he always does."

"Lincoln's smile would wilt me in half a minute," he said on another occasion when again urged to see the president and have a talk with him. "He is a wonderful man—wonderful! I never can harbor a thought against him except when I keep away from him."

The Experienced Swine.

The crowd around the postoffice stove, after exhausting the possibilities of politics, local and national, had been discussing the alleged lack of the truth telling instinct in Old Man Simpkins. Uncle Ezra came in, and Jim Peters said:

"What do you think about it, Uncle Ezra—would you call Old Man Simpkins a liar?"

"Well," answered Uncle Ezra slowly as he thoughtfully studied the ceiling, "I wouldn't go so fur as to call the old man a liar, but I do know it to be a fact that when feedin' time comes to get any response he has to have somebody else call his hogs fur him."—Woman's Home Companion.

Purely Professional.

"You say he's a professional man?"

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne doubtfully. "One of the kind who hang out a sign 'Back In an Hour' and leave it there the year through."—Washington Star.

Both Busy.

"The girl who knows she is pretty makes a fool of herself."

"And the girl who doesn't know she is pretty makes a fool of some man."—Houston Post.

A Telegram That Talked.

At one time when Georgie Drew Barrymore was playing in San Francisco a fabulous sum was offered her by a local theater for her services for a few weeks. The offer was exceedingly tempting, but her contract with Charles Frohman stood in the way. However, on the nothing-venture-nothing-win theory, she telegraphed a detailed statement of the offer she had received to Frohman in New York, explaining how anxious she was to accept it and wound up with the plea, "Will you release me?" In due course of time she received the following telegram in answer:

Mrs. Georgie Drew Barrymore, Palace Hotel, San Francisco:
No! CHARLES FROHMAN.

Albeit disappointed, Mrs. Barrymore at once sent this characteristic reply:

Charles Frohman, New York City:
Oh!
GEORGIE DREW BARRYMORE.

Doing Double Duty.

"It was one of those sleepy, one horse, back water towns, like Squash," said a congressman, describing at a Hot Springs dinner a town that he disliked.

"Squash is the limit. A gentleman arrived there the other day and wanted a hair cut. He found the barber shop and, after shaking the barber vigorously, managed to awaken him.

"'How long will it take you to cut my hair, barber?' he asked.

"'Not long, boss,' said the barber.

"And he rose, yawned and stretched himself. Then he called upstairs to his wife:

"'Hey, send the kid down to the newspaper office to tell the editor I want my scissors just as soon as he's done editin' the paper. There's a gent here waitin' for a hair cut.'"—Washington Star.

A Slight.

"Isn't McCorkle awfully thin since his return?"

"Yes. Do you know what they call his valet at the club?"

"No."

"They call him the valet of the shadow."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
